2. Project Description – provide a brief description of the project that summarizes what you will do, how you will do it, and why you will do it. Describe target audience, outcomes, objectives and timelines.

The Invasive Control at Riverfront Park and Ribary Creek project is a partnership between the City of North Bend and the Mountains to Sound Greenway Trust (Greenway Trust). In 2005, the City of North Bend, with help from the Greenway Trust, embarked on a series of restoration projects on City-owned and private land. Project sites included a number of parcels in and around Riverfront Park, which borders the South Fork Snoqualmie River, and Ribary Creek, a South Fork tributary. These projects, several of which were funded by past King Conservation District grants, emphasized the removal and control of invasive species, particularly English ivy and non-native blackberry, and the planting of native trees and shrubs, with a focus on conifers. On some sites, English ivy covered nearly 95% of the trees, and blanketed 75% of the understory. On other sites, entire reaches of creeks were a monoculture of blackberry.

The City of North Bend and the Greenway Trust have had success in reducing these invasive weeds and installing native plants across the project sites. Initial weed control was completed and a combination of over 10,000 native bareroot stakes, trees and shrubs were planted at the Ribary Creek and Riverfront Park project sites by June 2011.

Though project funding ended that year, the City of North Bend and the Greenway Trust have continued to coordinate maintenance project work in North Bend on these and other sites. However, both projects would benefit from additional maintenance, with a particular emphasis on English ivy and blackberry control.

If funded, this project will expand maintenance efforts in order to further the effective removal and control of weeds on 8 acres across the Ribary Creek and Riverfront Park project sites. Additionally, these control efforts will emphasize local volunteer support as the Greenway Trust will engage at least 50 volunteers who will contribute a minimum of 250 hours of service toward the project.

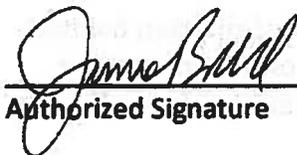

As the City is beginning to quickly grow, ongoing projects such as these provide important opportunities to educate new and old community residents about native ecosystems and the threat posed to the health of North Bend's natural areas by invasive weeds. This project has several key goals which build on the earlier phases of the projects, including:

1. Supporting ongoing efforts to remove and control English ivy and other invasive weeds, resulting in improved habitat conditions for wildlife and reducing the spread of weed seeds. Riparian enhancement (above Snoqualmie Falls) is identified as one of the action items in the Snohomish River Basin Salmon Conservation Plan (section 11.16).
 2. Facilitating significant public involvement in the restoration of riparian habitat.
 3. Training community and AmeriCorps conservation corps volunteers in plant identification, and best management practices to control a variety of weeds.
- 3. Project Activities and Measurable Results – using the table below, list specific project activities to be completed, the timetable for the activities, and the deliverables associated with those activities. Consider the following in your answer to this question: What actions, interventions, programs, services will be deployed? NOTE: If you want to attach Item 3 as a separate page, feel free to do so.
